Blues v Highlanders

At 7.05pm this Saturday the Blues look to continue their fantastic form in Super Rugby Aotearoa as they take on the Highlanders who have played one game - an unconvincing win against a shaky Chiefs team. The Blues played well in unfavourable conditions against the Chiefs, with their hunger on defense a huge highlight for supporters.

We have 100 tickets up for grabs and each household is entitled to two tickets, first in first served. As usual, we'll be here from 7am tomorrow at Entry G reception (limited to two tickets per household in The Hood).

Auckland Rugby merchandise sale

Auckland Rugby are clearing the decks and have a range of Auckland Rugby merchandise on sale at never before seen pricing. Call into the Merchandise Store at Gate B off Walters Road, during business hours or email Pauline Williams for more details. 'Dad's house' behind The Block NZ: Firehouse apartments for sale

As read on Stuff.co.nz, we were saddened to hear of the recent passing of local man Glynn Parry. Glynn lived on New North Road and overlooked Eden Park. His family owned the entire site and managed the Kingsland Boarding House, which sat at the front of the property, for more than a decade. This building sold in the last few years to Warner Bros. who utilised it as the site for TV3's The Block. Glynn bought the property in the '90s given it offered an enviable view of the stadium's Outer Oval and was a keen supporter of the Park in recent times.
